

PEO Certification & Bonding

Employer Services Assurance Corporation (ESAC)

More and more small and mid-sized businesses are partnering with Professional Employer Organizations (PEOs) for cost-effective, outsourced human resources services. The majority of these businesses choose PEOs accredited by the Employer Services Assurance Corporation.

ESAC ACCREDITATION IS THE PEO INDUSTRY'S GOLD STANDARD

Established nearly two decades ago, the ESAC demonstrates the PEO industry's commitment to self-regulation and financial assurance. Similar to the mission of the FDIC for the banking industry, the SIPC for the securities industry, and state guaranty associations for the insurance industry, the ESAC establishes financial assurance and national standards of operation for the PEO industry.

ESAC certification and bonding has become the industry's gold standard for financial reliability. Employers chose ESAC accredited PEOs because they value:

- Reliability. ESAC accreditation ensures that the owners and operators of a PEO have a history of meeting financial and legal obligations.
- Financial Assurance. Over $15 million in surety bonds back the PEOs' performance of key employer responsibilities, such as payment of wages, payroll taxes, employee benefits, and insurance premiums.
- Peace of Mind. PEOs backed by ESAC accreditation are financially sound, in compliance with regulatory requirements, and are meeting important industry operational, financial, and ethical standards.

EXTENSIS IS ONE OF 5% OF ALL PEOs ACCREDITED BY THE ESAC

This significant accreditation points to Extensis' financial reliability and compliance with important industry financial, ethical, and operational standards.
